

Knox punch ticket to first PJHL final

By Brad Brown
Grasslands News

Even with a historic season already on the books, Fort Knox head coach Matt Scott would still take a few do-overs if he had it his way.

About nine of them to be precise.

"As a team, as a coach, you always want to win," the rookie Prairie Junior Hockey League bench boss said in a phone interview Tuesday morning. "People always ask me about our regular season... and if I could do it all over again, I wouldn't want those (nine) losses. I'd want all wins."

But all things considered, as Fort Qu'Appelle prepares for its first-ever PJHL championship series?

"It's been really good... extremely special," Scott said.

Fort finished tied for top spot in the PJHL's regular season with a 31-6-0-3 record then punched its ticket to the league final with consecutive four-game playoff sweeps of the Assiniboia Southern Rebels and Regina Capitals.

The Knox won those games by a combined score of 45-10, most recently earning their championship round berth March 21 with a 3-0 win over the hometown Regina Capitals.

Goalie Jackson Miller made 37 saves for his second shutout of the playoffs and Fort Qu'Appelle got goals from Castor Berezuk, Tanner Wiens (both on the power play) and Cooper Buhay (into an empty net) along the way.

What the Rocks are cooking

Filling in for regular season starter Zane Winter, Miller has now allowed just one goal on 98 shots in just over 180 minutes of playoff action. Winter meanwhile would be leading all PJHL netminders in goals-against average (2.00) and save percentage (.931) through his own four playoff appearances, if not for his teammate.

"We've got extremely good goaltending from both guys," Scott said of his club's strengths. "They're our rocks you could say. But as far as the group and the team goes, we've got a group of guys that really enjoy being around each other. And the first thing any extremely successful team has is a really, really good team culture, and our team has been able to build that culture with the whole group of guys, and that creates a lot of buy in for everyone, including the young guys as they follow the example of our veterans."

Among those who might fit the bill are second-year forward Madden Wallis and rookie forward Shaden Duliak.

While Wallis led the Knox with 53 points in 40 games during the regular season, earning his second straight Bill Johnston Division all-star honour, Duliak has taken the offensive reins during the playoffs with a team-high 15 points including two assists in the series clincher over Regina.

Breach of ethics violations

Johnson suspended; second councillor under investigation

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

An independent third-party investigation has ruled that Fort Qu'Appelle Councillor Marcy Johnson violated the town's code of ethics and Johnson was not allowed to participate in Tuesday's special meeting. At the same time the Fort Times has learned a second Councillor, Rebecca Zacharuk is also under investigation for a similar ethics breach.

Several people stood outdoors for two hours in the cold to get into Tuesday evening's special meeting while consultant Jeff Campbell briefed a closed-door session about why the complaints against Johnson had been sustained.

The complaint against Johnson was sparked following an incident involving a former civic employee at the Rexentre on Feb 8.

The investigation concluded that

Johnson failed to serve the community in a conscientious and diligent manner, that as a councillor her behavior no longer inspires the public trust and confidence in local government and that she has not performed her duties as a councillor in a "manner that will bear close public scrutiny."

When Johnson was finally allowed into chambers and took her seat at the table, she was told she could not participate in the meeting. Her attempt to speak was cut short by Mayor Brian Strong who asked her to leave the meeting.

She has been given 10 days either to appeal or to respond to the findings.

Johnson cannot be removed from office but faces remedial action which could require her to make a verbal or written apology, could have her removed from council committees or even result in a cut in pay.

When the council resumed without her, it passed Bylaw 03-2025 which tentatively increases the quarterly water bill by 10 per cent from $337 to $355. The increase will not go into effect until the bylaw is approved by the Saskatchewan Municipal Board.

Mayor Strong, who left for a vacation in the Caribbean Wednesday morning, adjourned the meeting at 9:30 p.m. and council was unable to deal with all of the items on the agenda.

The Times has been unable to learn the reasons for the investigation into Councillor Zacharuk's behaviour. She used to work for the town of Fort Qu'Appelle but is now employed as a receptionist at the RM of North Qu'Appelle, #187.

Neither Johnson nor Zacharuk were available for comment before going to press.

Federal election called; election day April 28

By Jacob Miller
Grasslands News

Canadians are set to go to the polls on April 28, 2025, as the 2025 Federal Election has been called.

Prime Minister Mark Carney dissolved parliament on March 23, 2025, nine days after he was sworn in as Prime Minister. The election is six months early from its fixed date.

The Liberal government is looking for their fourth term this election, as the Conservative Party and their leader Pierre Poilievre look to form government for the first time since the 2011 election.

In a press conference outside of Rideau Hall on March 23, Carney laid out his reasoning for calling an early election.

"We've done a lot in the nine days to put in place many of the foundations," said Carney. "But what's important is that the government has a mandate from the Canadian people to finish the job, to finish the job of building that Canadian economy, to finish the job of diversifying our trading partners, and to have a strong mandate to stand up to (U.S. President) Donald Trump and the Americans and negotiate the best deal for Canadians."

Poilievre said that the Liberals are asking for a fourth term, after swapping Justin Trudeau for Carney. "After the lost Liberal decade, the question is whether Canadians can afford a fourth term of out-of-touch Liberals, inflating housing and food costs, unleashing crime, ruining immigration, hiking taxes, blocking resource jobs and making our economy weak and reliant on the U.S.," said Poilievre. "Or is it time to put Canada First, for a change, with a new Conservative government that will axe taxes, build homes, cut waste, lock-up criminals, secure our borders and unleash our resources to bring home our jobs and stand up to Trump from a position of strength."

"I will protect Canada. And I will always put our country first," said Poilievre.

Local ridings

As of press time in ridings covered by Grasslands News, there are nine people in the running for spots in parliament.

In Regina-Qu'Appelle incumbent Andrew Scheer is running again for the Conservatives, Kendrea Anderson will represent the Green Party, and Dionne Fehler is running for the People's Party of Canada (PPC).

In Yorkton-Melville incumbent Cathay Wagantall will be running for the Conservatives, Valerie Brooks will be running for the Green Party, and Alec Guggenmos will be running as a Libertarian.

In Souris-Moose Mountain former Sask Party MLA Steven Bonk will be running for the Conservatives in place of Robert Kitchen, Remi Rheault will be running for the Green Party, and Hannah Raketti will be running for the PPC.

Candidates have until April 7, 2025, and the full list of confirmed candidates will be released April 9.

Riding lines have changed since the 2021 election. If you plan on voting in the upcoming federal election go to elections.ca to view your updated riding.

Conexus Credit Union warns against online selling fraud

Submitted
Grasslands News

Conexus Credit Union is issuing a warning for Saskatchewan residents selling items online. The last few months have seen a spike in fraud cases originating from scammers victimizing people in online marketplaces.

"We want to remind Saskatchewan residents to stay vigilant when selling items online," says Mark Millham, Conexus' Chief Risk and Compliance Officer. "We are seeing more fraudsters attempting to obtain banking credentials through online marketplaces. The strongest way to protect yourself against this scam is to set up autodeposit for Interac e-Transfer® and to enable digital banking alerts."

"The autodeposit feature helps protect you against financial loss as legitimate e-transfers are processed automatically."

Digital marketplaces are more popular than ever. Unfortunately, this popularity also attracts fraudsters. These fraudsters are targeting people regardless of their financial institution.

How do these scams work?

Fraudsters use online trickery and social engineering to defraud their victims. A fraudster may respond to an online post, expressing interest in the item. They will then suggest purchasing items via e-transfer. The fraudster sends an email mimicking the e-transfer emails everyone recognizes. There will be slight differences in the email that are difficult to discern without close inspection.

More recently, fraudsters are also sending fake e-transfers through social media messaging platforms.

Protect yourself against this scam with autodeposit

The strongest way to protect yourself against this scam is to set up autodeposit for Interac e-Transfer®. Without the possibility of fake e-transfer emails, legitimate e-transfers are processed automatically, reducing the risk of clicking on a fraudulent link or providing online banking credentials to bad actors.

More tips to buy and sell safely online

In addition to enabling autodeposit, here are some more tips to protect yourself when buying and selling online:

- Safeguard your banking credentials: Never enter your banking credentials anywhere except the Conexus Digital Banking Platform. Download the app or bookmark conexus.ca. Do not input your information into any link someone has sent you.

- Set up alerts: Real-time alerts through text message or push notification are a great way to continuously monitor account activity and stop fraud in its tracks.

- Be hypervigilant: Fraudsters are hunting for your banking credentials. They will manipulate so victims lower their guard. Watch out for pressure tactics, attempts to circumvent transaction processes, and avoid clicking links. Prompts for e-transfers never come through direct messages in social media platforms.

Conexus members who believe they may have been the victim of fraud or who encounter any fraudulent activity should contact Conexus and report the incident.

Ag reps say canola tariffs an urgent, immediate concern

By Connie Schwalm
Grasslands News

It is currently impossible to say the word “tariff” and avoid being drawn into a discussion of the volatile situation impacting trade between Canada and the US. However, both Daryl Harrison (Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture) and SARM President Bill Huber say that the tariffs being imposed by China on canola and other key exports are an immediate concern in this province.

As Harrison explains, the Chinese tariff is a response to a decision made by the Federal Government last summer.

“A Canadian tariff on Chinese electric vehicles coming into this country was imposed by the Federal Government in August. At that time, both the Trade & Export Development Minister and my predecessor wrote to the Federal Government, warning of the possible repercussions of imposing this tariff on electric vehicles.

“Obviously those warnings didn’t change their minds, and now our reality is that as of March 20, we have a 100% tariff on Canola seed, oil and meal, as well as on peas (which is also a very important crop in Saskatchewan). There are also lesser but still very impactful tariffs that China has put on pork and seafood products from Canada.”

Harrison goes on to say that an urgent meeting was recently held between government officials and various stakeholder groups to discuss the Chinese tariff situation.

“We held talks immediately following the SARM Convention in Saskatoon last week, with representatives from SARM, Producer Groups and Agricultural Equipment Manufacturing Groups. It was not surprising to me that the main concern for everyone at that meeting was canola and what impact the Chinese tariffs will have on producers and the canola industry.

“It’s particularly telling that even manufacturers were most concerned about the Chinese tariffs. If producers aren’t able to sell product and generate income, they’re not buying equipment. They’re not even kicking tires. From a manufacturer’s standpoint, that’s the equivalent of hitting a brick wall. If there are no sales, then there is nothing to manufacture. This really demonstrates the importance of canola in this province.”

SARM president Bill Huber attended that meeting and agrees that, “The 100% tariff that China has placed on canola is the number one issue right now. That’s the tariff that is going to impact us the hardest and soonest.”

Huber notes that the agriculture industry has faced increased pressure over the past few years that has already compromised the profitability of canola production.

“One thing that we shouldn’t forget is that we have some of the best Agricultural Producers in the world here in Saskatchewan. They are the most modernized and mechanized producers around the globe. We’re also good business stewards and stewards of the land. And canola is what they used to call our ‘Cinderella crop’. It’s the most expensive crop to grow but can also be your highest revenue source in a year.

“But agriculture the past couple of years has faced pressure due to drought and conflicts around the globe. Canola prices have dropped from the 2022-23 crop year to today. Meanwhile the cost of inputs has gone up.”

Now, with the added pressure of the Chinese tariff, Huber says that producers may be forced to reduce canola production.

“Producers generally plan their crop rotations around three basic commodities – oilseeds, cereal crops and pulse crops – which are the three types of crops grown the most in Saskatchewan. Those rotations can’t be changed overnight.

“A lot of our producers have already purchased canola seed and fertilizer for the year. They did their soil tests last fall. So, they know what nutrients they need to put into the ground with the seed – and these products are already in the bin – ready for the start of spring seeding.

“Now when things change because of these tariffs and we see a $2 drop in the price of canola already, producers are somewhat hesitant to seed the number of acres they’re committed to. I’m not saying that acres will be withdrawn from their seeding plan. Some will go ahead because the seed and fertilizer are already purchased and ready to go. But there is certainly the potential for producers to pull a lot of those acres back and switch to another crop.”

Huber goes on to say that along with a decrease in canola production, the province could potentially see the loss of canola crushing capacity, something which may prove difficult to regain later on.

“The really discouraging thing is that this has already slowed down crush at the main Canola Crushing Plant in Yorkton. Crush plants have no capacity to store meal and oil. So, that product has to move continuously as the crush goes on. If that gets backed up, the crush has to slow down, and we risk losing a lot of jobs.

“Once you lose a crush plant or even see reduced staff at that facility, sometimes it’s hard to get them back and ramped up to full capacity when things change. And our producers will face financial constraints not only because of the price drop, but because of the lost opportunity to deliver on product that’s already been priced.”

Harrison points out that the potential losses in the canola industry will be felt throughout the province.

“There is sense of urgency here that cannot be emphasized strongly enough, because there is a cloud hanging over our agricultural producers and the entire canola industry. There are 55,000 jobs in Saskatchewan directly related to canola and canola processing (which includes those working at Canola Crushing facilities as well as seed suppliers and those companies which sell crop inputs). So, damage to or loss of the canola industry will have an economic impact on the entire province.”

Huber stresses that the unavoidable delay caused by the federal election will mean that immediate action will be needed to address this situation.

“As it is now, we will be halfway through seeding by the time a new Federal Government is elected and sworn in. Once the new government is sworn in, there will be an urgent need for the Prime Minister and/or the Federal Agriculture Minister to talk to Chinese officials and explain to them how critical this situation is. The new Federal Government also needs to remove the tariff that’s been put in place on electric vehicles coming into this country, so that we can get back to having normal and efficient trade with China.”

Harrison says that the province will continue to do all it can in the interim and will be ready to work with the new Federal Government to resolve the situation as soon as possible.

“The timing is bad. I have been reassured that at the ambassador level, these relationships and

Abandoned house fire is deemed suspicious

By Chris Ashfield
Grasslands News

A fire at an abandoned house on the Ochapowace First Nation is being deemed as suspicious by fire investigators.

The fire was reported at 7:20 p.m. on Mar. 25 when a neighbour noticed smoke coming from a mobile trailer home next to theirs. Firefighters from Whitewood, who had been assisting with a bonspiel set-up at the local arena right next door to the fire hall, were able to quickly respond.

Once on scene firefighters entered the house and were able to locate a fire in a bedroom and had it extinguished within minutes. Holes were then cut into the ceiling and a thermal imaging camera was used to ensure the fire was out.

While the house had been abandoned, damage from the fire was mostly contained to the one bedroom with some smoke damage caused to some other areas.

Broadview RCMP also attended the scene, and it was determined the fire appeared to be intentionally started as the house had no power. Whitewood Fire Department is working with the Saskatchewan Public Safety Agency in investigating the fire.

5G expanded to nearly 100 rural cell sites

Submitted
Grasslands News

SaskTel announced earlier this week that it recently expanded its 5G network to Good Spirit Lake, Moose Mountain Provincial Park, and nearly 100 other cell sites serving rural communities and highway corridors. This latest expansion is part of SaskTel's ongoing initiative to deliver next-generation and hyper-fast wireless connectivity to Saskatchewan residents and businesses.

"SaskTel's 5G network is delivering for the people of Saskatchewan by transforming how they connect, work, and access vital services," said Jeremy Harrison, Minister Responsible for SaskTel. "This cutting-edge technology goes beyond faster data speeds—it empowers individuals, businesses, and industries with the tools they need to succeed in an increasingly digital world. Whether it's expanding access to remote healthcare, supporting online learning, or driving innovation in agriculture and transportation, 5G is delivering for our province's economic growth and future prosperity."

Some of the areas that have recently been upgraded to SaskTel 5G service include:

- Good Spirit Lake
- Kenosee Lake (East)
- Moose Mountain Provincial Park
- Wawota
- White Bear (Southwest)
- Willowbrook (Southwest)
- Highway 247 intersection with Highway 201

Currently, SaskTel's 5G network can deliver data speeds of up to 1.2 Gigabits per second (Gbps), and as it matures the network will provide significantly faster speeds. Other future benefits of 5G will include massive network capacity and ultra-low latency, all of which will enable new use cases for emerging wireless technologies that will be the foundation that next-generation innovations will be built upon.

"We are thrilled to expand our advanced 5G network to more hometowns across Saskatchewan," said Charlene Gavel, SaskTel President and CEO. "As Saskatchewan's homegrown communications leader, SaskTel is committed to delivering high-quality communications solutions that allow our customers to connect to what matters most to them, no matter where they live in our province."

The continued expansion of its 5G and fibre networks is a direct result of SaskTel's commitment to ensure Saskatchewan residents have access to the digital tools and technologies needed to compete and succeed in the modern world.

In order to connect to its 5G network, SaskTel customers need to be within a 5G coverage area, have a 5G capable device that is certified for use on the SaskTel 5G network, and subscribe to a 5G compatible wireless plan.

Canola tariffs

negotiations will continue. And we're working on the trade and export side to establish relationships with provinces in China. But there's only so much we can do, and at the Federal Government level, things are at a standstill. That is extremely concerning.

"But the reality is that no matter who forms the next Federal Government, there will be a delay in establishing the cabinet as there will be a lot of new faces around that cabinet table. So, it will be a tough job for them to get fully up to speed on our current situation. But we will continue to do all we can and be ready work hard with whoever the new Prime Minister and Federal Agriculture Minister is to have this tariff removed."

No further work planned for troubled highway spots

By Elaine Ashfield
Grasslands News

Less than half a year after Highway #9 both north and south of Whitewood were repaved, motorists have already had to deal with the return of a problematic frost boil in the Qu'Appelle Valley and are also questioning why a section through Whitewood was not included in the 36.8 kilometer stretch of work done last year.

Last summer, 18.8 kilometers of Highway #9 from Whitewood north to the Qu'Appelle River was repaved at a cost of $7.9 million, along with 14.8 kilometers of Highway #9 from the Pipestone Valley creek to the Richardson Pioneer terminal just south of Whitewood. The cost of that work was an additional $3.1 million. Left untouched was a 2.4 kilometer stretch through Whitewood from the Richardson Pioneer terminal to Highway #1.

Earlier this winter, a large frost boil that had been problematic for over a decade returned on Highway #9 north on the south side of the Qu'Appelle Valley. The heaving in the highway has meant drivers must slow down significantly or risk damaging their vehicle. While two small red diamond shaped signs mark the spot (which motorists say are often covered by snow or salt), there has been no reduced speed limit sign at the troubled spot over the past winter, meaning drivers are often caught off guard and hit the spot at highway speed.

According to Dan Palmer, Senior Communications Consultant with the Ministry of Highways, the government in late 2024 completed the installation of a subsurface drain near Highway #9 north of Whitewood in the Qu'Appelle Valley and there currently is no immediate plan to do any additional work at the spot.

"The drain is to lower the water level at this location to dry out the material under the driving surface (also called a roadbed) to help prevent further frost heaves," Palmer told Grasslands News in an email. "The ministry intends to monitor the effectiveness of the drain. Regular maintenance will occur on the highway, as needed."

Palmer also addressed a question regarding the 2.4-kilometer section of Highway #9 through Whitewood that was not repaved last summer when work was being done both north and south of town. While many motorists find the roadway rough, Palmer stated that the condition of the highway did not warrant that section to receive new pavement.

"It was determined the segment of Highway #9 through Whitewood didn't require work as part of the project. However, the ministry will look at doing work there in future construction seasons and continue with regular maintenance," said

Palmer.

Whitewood mayor Chris Ashfield said that the highway is rough to drive, and that council feels that it would have been better to repave it at the same time they were in the area doing paving both north and south of town. Now he expects it will likely be years before improvements will be made to that section through town.

"For anyone driving on Highway #9 between Highway #1 and the Richardson Pioneer terminal, they know the road is rough and needs new pavement. It's just unfortunate that the only spot the Ministry of Highways didn't repave between the Qu'Appelle Valley and the Pipestone Valley was the small 2.4-kilometer stretch that passes through town. To me, it would have been more cost effective to do it at the time then it will be to have to tender that small section in the future," said Ashfield.

OPINION

"For the cause that needs assistance; for the wrong that needs resistance; the future in the distance and the good that we can do."

The gloves are off between Liberals and Conservatives in upcoming election

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

The Conservative Party is arguably better prepared than the Liberals to fight the April 28th federal election that the Prime Minister called on Sunday. But their leader Pierre Poilievre has blown a 20-point lead in the polls and is now suffocating on the political vitriol that he has been spewing for the past three years.

Liberals still don't have a full slate of 343 candidates but at the same time the Conservatives don't appear to have a team ready to govern.

It is shaping up to be one of the most bizarre, sobering and crucial elections in modern history. The race is between an experienced political gadfly and an untested political novice who has had political leadership thrust upon him.

Mark Carney not only has to deal with the madman in the White House whose goal is to destroy Canada as a nation. At the same time Carney has to fight an election campaign hoping to capitalize on the Liberal party's astonishing rebound in the polls. He also must win his own election in the Ottawa riding of Nepean which bounced the Liberal incumbent out of the running to make way for the untested Prime Minister.

Still, since Carney became leader, the Liberals appear to have gained ground in every province except Saskatchewan. Here in the heartland of Conservative territory Cathey Wagantall, (Yorkton-Melville), Steven Bonk (Souris-Moose Mountain) and Andrew Scheer (Regina-Qu'Appelle) who are all more popular than their leader will almost certainly be re-elected, but any hopes of them becoming cabinet ministers in a Conservative government have vanished.

Poilievre and his cohorts have proven themselves to be adept in disparaging the country, mouthing catchy campaign slogans like "axe the tax," opposing most of the country's social programs, threatening journalists with lawsuits and banning reporters from the campaign plane, but little else.

Mark Carney, politically untested as he is, is familiar in the corridors of power in both Europe and North America. The only practical business experience on Polievre's CV is as a bill collector for Telus. He was first elected to Parliament when he was 25-years old, served as a junior minister in Stephen Harper's cabinet and has been ferocious in opposition. But since Justin Trudeau's resignation and Trump's re-election the political landscape in Canada has unmistakably shifted.

The ballot question now is who can best deal with the existential threat to the survival of the country.

The Liberal slogan is "Canada Strong." After complaining for so many years how bad Canada is the Conservatives are running on a theme of "Canada First."

Polls do not predict the future. The Liberals are in no position to take the favourable winds for granted. Political storms are unpredictable and can erupt at any time and blow an election campaign off course.

The election is now Carney's to lose.

But if the trend in his favour continues Canadians seem to be prepared to take a dramatic step into the unknown.

Letter to Editor: 51st state, eh!

Dear Editor,

The very suggestion is the old corporate real estate scam of low-balling a coveted property with the intent of scooping it up cheap and making huge profits. To suggest our Prime Minister is a governor does not just eliminate the value of our head of state it suggests internationally our government is insignificant in comparison to the strengths of our Make America Great Again (MAGA) neighbors. There is no generosity in Trumps suggestion that we become a subservient acquisition of his regime.

40 million Canadians getting representation as one US state would give us only two senators and around 57 representatives in the lower house of congress based on population plus one governor to rule the entire country while suddenly increasing the population of the USA by 12 per cent. So, this is a staggeringly insulting, intentional suggestion. The idea of Canada becoming 1 single state is a smoking-dream-deal for a trumped-up real estate investor who has gone bankrupt several times.

More palatable would be a suggestion of a power sharing agreement, an offer of multiple Canadian states. If based on population alone compared to the US it would mean representation in congress of 16 senators still 57 Representatives but 8 governors all elected by Canadians. If based on 10 provinces and 3 territories becoming states then that would mean 26 senators and 13 governors. Consider that the acquisition of Canada would more than double the land mass of the USA, then if the Canadian land mass was divided into equivalent sized states, we would have more than 50 states and a majority of the senate seats with the voting ability to set a new path for the USA despite the current regime.

Let's not forget that Canada is not the only acquisition Trump has his greedy eyes set on. There is also Greenland, Panama and the Gaza strip he has consistently admitted to coveting. While trying to black mail Ukraine into giving up their natural resources. These are not offers where equal value would be exchanged or human rights considered. These are threatened cold-hearted real estate and natural resource acquisitions complete with ethnic cleansing.

I have no problems rubbing shoulders with Greenlanders, Palestinians, Panamanians or Ukrainians and I don't think that many people in the western world do. They're not much different than us. Most of them, that aren't psychopaths, love their families and just want to live in peace with enough prosperity to keep food on the table and a roof over their heads.

So, a more palatable deal to make a much greater USA would be to offer Canada 50 states, Greenland 10, Gaza five, Panama seven and include Ukraine with another 50 states making 122 states with full representation in the US congress. That would solve a lot of existing world problem like tariffs and the intentional slaughter in two existing nasty wars.

Whitewood adjusts property mill rate factor for upcoming budget

By Elaine Ashfield
Grasslands News

Unlike some municipal centers, most Whitewood residents should not see their taxes change greatly this year.

Taxpayers never want to see an increase in their taxes, but they also do not want to see cuts in their communities due to lack of funding. Those are issues Whitewood town council tried to balance when they approved the tax mill rates for 2025 at their Mar. 18 council meeting.

The term "mill rate" can be described as the amount of tax that is paid per $1,000 of assessed property value. Municipalities and school administrators use the mill rate to calculate the amount of property tax that is required from each property to raise the revenue necessary to operate the municipality and schools for the current year.

The mill rate has two components, the municipal portion and the education portion.

The provincial government lowered the education mill rate (school tax) this year with the residential set at 4.27 (decreased from 4.54) and commercial is 6.37 (decreased from 6.86). Municipalities such as the town of Whitewood see no revenue from the school taxes but are merely a collector of the taxes that are then submitted to the government of Saskatchewan.

Municipal taxes collected by the town, on the other hand, are what constitutes revenue to operate the community. The municipal portion for taxation from the Town of Whitewood was approved at the council meeting to remain at 10.5 per cent municipal mill rate, but a bylaw was also passed setting a new mill rate factor for the current year of taxation. Mill rate factors essentially adjust the mill rate, with the result that the effective mill rate for a specific property classification may be higher or lower than other property classifications.

2025 was an assessment year and Whitewood found a substantial decrease in many of the assessments on residential properties but also saw an increase in some commercial property assessed values.

If all tax rates remained unchanged from the previous year(s), this would mean that the revenue for the town would see an overall decrease as ratepayers whose assessments decreased would pay less taxes. Unfortunately, as the economy puts more pressure on all individuals, it also puts pressure on the municipalities to keep revenues in lines with expenses needed to operate the town.

As a necessity to keep revenue for the Town of Whitewood at a viable rate while trying to keep taxes within the usual rate that the taxpayers have been paying, council decided on a mill rate factor being introduced this year. The bylaw for the mill rate factor states properties within the Commercial/Industrial Class shall have a factor of 1.4 (down from 1.5) applied to the mill rate (10.5 for the year 2025). Properties within the Residential Class shall have a factor of 1.3 (up from 1.0) times applied to the mill rate. Properties not included in the local property class mentioned shall be subject to a mill rate factor of 1.0.

"Council decided to go with a mill rate factor this year instead of adjusting the actual mill rate itself. This allows us to adjust rates for individual categories, such as residential or commercial, compared to a broad adjustment across all property classes," Mayor Chris Ashfield told Grasslands News. "Because commercial saw an increase in their assessment, we lowered the commercial mill rate factor. At the same time, most residential properties saw a decrease in their assessment, so we increased the residential mill rate factor. At the end of the day, our goal was to try and have most property owners paying close to what they had been in previous years."

It's a Strange World

Rick Edwards, the Police Chief of Richmond, Va., was pulled over for speeding, 61 mph in a 35 zone. The stop was executed by one of his own officers, whom the Chief ordered to write a citation. Edwards said he had "no good reason" for speeding, and pleaded no contest to reckless driving, the automatic charge since he was going 20 mph more than the speed limit. He received the standard penalty for a first-time offender, which was an eight-hour online class, and about $90 in court costs. Full credit to the Chief, who even informed reporters during his crime briefing. Randy Cassingham offered, "No one is above the law", a motto of respectable leaders."

Police in the Far North region of New Zealand were stressed out trying to figure out who owns an item that fell off a truck, blocking the road. The 'litter' was actually a house! Police had no immediate info about who dropped the house, and why the driver never noticed his loss. A contractor was brought in to widen the road so traffic could get by while someone figures out how to move the house without damaging it further.

A Good Samaritan, who picked up a stray dog, searched unsuccessfully for its owner, and, in despair of doing the right thing, took the dog to a shelter. Owner Cheyenne Campbell had let the rescue dog out of the house, and Emma just never returned. By the biggest coincidence, Campbell worked at the shelter and was thrilled when a 'nervous, timid' Emma recognized her voice. They both enjoyed the reunion.

Americans can take murder hornets off the list of things to worry about in 2025. Federal officials say the invasive species has been eradicated from the US, five years after the first specimens were found in Washington state. There have been no confirmed detections of the hornet in three years. The species, native to northern Asia, is known for destroying entire beehives within hours to feed their young, decapitating all the bees in the process. In Japan, they kill around 50 people a year.

Polish border guards discovered over 100 kg of cocaine on the bottom of the Baltic Sea while conducting operations to protect critical infrastructure. Seven people were detained in the case involving drugs which the border guard said could reach a black-market value of up to 60 million zlotys ($15 million). Baltic Sea nations are on high alert for any incidents involving underwater critical infrastructure and NATO has said it will boost its presence in the area after several incidents in which such infrastructure has suffered suspicious damage.

French thieves used a stolen card to buy a lottery ticket that turned out to be worth $523,000. They never tried to cash in the ticket and are now among France's most famous fugitives. The man, whose card was stolen, has offered to split the jackpot, but he would also like his wallet returned. By the time the victim reported the loss of his bank cards, and before they could be cancelled, one credit card had been used at a local shop. The vendor told him two apparently homeless men had bought the winning scratch-off lottery ticket. "They were so totally happy that they forgot their cigarettes and their belongings and walked out like crazy people."

A carwash in Manila, Ark., called police after finding someone had packed up three puppies in a cardboard box and left it in a wash bay. Officer Ronald Amick responded, and proved to be sharp-eyed, as he spotted a handy piece of evidence, a shipping label attached to the box with the recipient's name and address. Jeremy Roberts, 20, was soon charged with three counts of animal cruelty.

In Tennessee, an unfortunate incident left seven dogs dead, with a local deputy accused of gunning them down while responding to a call. Connor Brackin, who is now described as a former deputy with the McNairy County Sheriff's Office, showed up at a residence in Bethel Springs to investigate a possible animal welfare issue. Brackin reported finding dogs, all in ill health, being kept in trailers. It is still not clear why he found it necessary to kill seven dogs, although Brackin says he was cleared by his supervisor to put the surviving animals down. The dogs' owner, Kevin Dismuke, refutes that his dogs were malnourished or otherwise in bad condition. Brackin was charged with aggravated cruelty to animals and reckless endangerment, both felonies.

In all these uncertain times, authorities are suggesting that people should check on the welfare of the elderly. I'm usually up by 7:30 or maybe 8:00. Bring donuts.

Until next time, keep reading between the lines...

A. Hailey's 1960's novel anticipates 51st state

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

Life imitates art in the plot of a gripping political novel written more than 60 years ago that centred on an Act of Union between the Canada and the United States.

Arthur Hailey's book, In High Places was published in 1961 when the threat of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union loomed large. The invented characters grapple with the central question of how to maintain Canadian sovereignty in an interdependent relationship with the United States when both countries are threatened by the prospect of World War III.

Like President Trump, who harbours the delusional notion of Canada becoming the 51st state, the President in Hailey's story, Tyler Lexington "a president with paw like fingers," makes the case that U.S. "national security" and "the hope of a better world," depends on the merger of the two nations. And, just as Trump recently humiliated Ukrainian President Vladimir Zelensky, the book's fictional Canadian Prime Minister

James Howden, is dressed down in the oval office by a U.S. Admiral when Howden seeks assurances that in the event of union the United States would not "take everything," and plunder Canada's raw materials in exchange for U.S. military protection.

There is a bit of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, a chunk of U.S. Admiral Hyman D. Rickover, the father of the U.S. nuclear navy and fictional characters made up of recognizable bits of former Prime Ministers Lester Bowles Pearson and John Diefenbaker.

In a withering, stage-managed take down that remains topical today the Americans in the book argue that Canadians sold their birthright to corporate interests then went searching for it with talk about a distinctive Canadianism.

"Canadians wanted an American standard of living overnight. You chose to ignore that American standards took a century of sweat and belt tightening to build. So, you opened up your raw wealth that you might have husbanded instead and you let the Americans move in, develop your birthright, take the risks, and run the show. That way you bought your standard of living - then you sneered at the things we had in common," thunders a U.S. Presidential aid. "Far from paying a price it would be an act of amazing generosity to a greedy, vacillating country which has made a national pastime of timidity, fence straddling and hypocrisy. You talk of building Canada, but why bother, America built it for you and we'll probably have to do it again."

In the heated exchange Prime Minister Howden observes that "American diplomacy comes in two ways - either contemplating rape or ready to receive it. There is seldom any in between."

Sound familiar?

In the book the fictional Prime Minister argues that even Canadian vacillation is better than the "blundering, naïve ineptness of United States diplomacy with a crude belief in the dollar as an answer to all problems. America, with its insufferably virtuous air of always being right, its refusal to believe that other concepts, alien systems of government might sometimes have their virtues."

When Arthur Hailey, a Canadian author and playwright died 20 years ago, acclaimed critics like Robert Fulford dismissed the plot of In High Places as "unbelievable." No one on either side of the border could imagine that the harsh world of politics and politicians that Hailey created could ever exist.

But then who in their right mind could ever imagine the likes of someone like Donald Trump in the White House?

James Edgar

The Sky This Month

By James Edgar
for Grasslands News

The Moon begins the month as a waxing crescent just a half degree north of the Pleiades (M45), aka The Seven Sisters. And, big Jupiter is not far behind, as the gas giant is 6 degrees south of the Moon on April 2nd. The first-quarter Moon on April 5th is 2 degrees north of Mars. By the 12th, the Moon is full, the smallest in 2025, as it is at apogee the following day (406,295 km distant). Also on April 12th, the bright star Spica is a mere 0.3 degrees away, occulted in the Southern Hemisphere. On the evening of April 16, Antares is 0.4 degrees north of the Moon, also a Southern Hemisphere occultation. Last quarter is on April 21st. By April 24th, Venus is 2 degrees north of the crescent Moon, while Saturn is 2 degrees south - could be a good early morning photo op. Also on that morning, Mercury is 4 degrees south, hugging the horizon - use binoculars from a location with a clear eastern horizon. Even Neptune gets in the picture, if you have a very good telescope! All four planets are clustered together in the morning twilight. New Moon is on April 27th; with the Moon at perigee of 357,118 km, causing large tides in coastal areas. By April 29th, the Moon is back among the stars of the Pleiades (M45). Jupiter is 5 degrees south on April 30th.

Mercury comes into view early in the month, but considered a poor apparition for northern viewers, as the speedy planet is too close to the horizon. It's a great apparition for viewers in the Southern Hemisphere. The Moon glides by on the morning of April 24th.

Venus is now the Morning Star, rising shortly after 5 a.m. It, too, is plagued by the shallow ecliptic angle in the early days of April, remaining visible for only an hour or so. It might be fun to see if you can track it into the daytime sky - it can be done. Later in the month, it reaches 41 degrees elongation from the Sun, beginning to round the curve of its orbit away from us. The brightest planet is joined by the Moon on April 24th and Saturn on April 28th.

Mars, still hanging around the Gemini twins, gradually slides eastward into Cancer, The Crab. The first-quarter Moon shares the scene on April 5th. The Red Planet reaches aphelion on the 17th, the furthest from us in its orbit, and not a very good telescopic target.

Jupiter remains close to the Hyades in Taurus, The Bull, making for good evening views. The Moon is 6 degrees north on April 2nd, and again on April 30th.

Saturn comes out from behind the Sun early in the month, but viewing suffers from a shallow ecliptic angle. Saturn's rings will be backlit as the Sun is behind the planet from our viewpoint. The crescent Moon and Venus are clustered with Saturn on April 25th Uranus is gradually dropping southward on the ecliptic following sunset. Too close to the Sun for viewing late in the month.

Neptune is among the stars of Pisces, The Fish, but, again, suffering from the low ecliptic angle. Even telescopes might not be enough to see the distant planet.

The Lyrid meteors peak in the early morning of April 22nd.

Decent and healthy man is seeking a lady in south-eastern Sask. area, between 55-75 years of age for outings and companionship.

The Bay's first retail outlet was in Fort Qu'Appelle

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

The Fort Times celebrates its 75th anniversary this year. To mark the occasion, we will explore and document the role the paper has played in the progress of our community through a series of stories from our archives.

With the news that the Hudson Bay Company is liquidating its assets, it is fitting to recall that 50 years ago this month that The Times reported that the NDP Government of Saskatchewan had acquired one of the Bay's first retail outlets that opened in Fort Qu'Appelle in 1897.

Designed by the company's chief factor Archibald McDonald, it was built of fieldstone and brick by stone masons from Ontario, Robert Webster and his son Clifford.

When it opened in what was then still the Northwest Territory, it was described as, "The finest store west of Winnipeg." It prospered as the only supply centre for homesteaders who settled in and around the valley until 1911 when the railroad was built through Fort Qu'Appelle and it became cheaper to shop in Regina.

In 1917, McDonald's son bought the store from the Bay and turned it into the Pioneer General Store which occupied the premises for the next 58 years.

When the province bought it through the Qu'Appelle Implementation Public Land Purchase program, the government had hoped to restore the building as a museum as a project to commemorate the province's 75th anniversary in 1980.

The idea never got off the ground.

Funding for the project slipped between the cracks of two provincial government departments. Work stopped in 1979 because of what the ministry called "budgeting problems." The province then offered to sell the property to the town of Fort Qu'Appelle for $1.00 for use as a library on the condition that the old chief factor's office on the second floor remain intact.

The town couldn't afford the necessary repairs and the old store remained empty and became a "public hazard" on Broadway Street.

"Fort Qu'Appelle residents are becoming upset with the lack of any visible signs of repair being carried out on the store," Mayor Don Cockwill wrote to the government in 1980 and threatened to have the building demolished.

In 1983 the province declared it a heritage property and put the building up for sale. Local developer Jim Chaplin bought it in 1984 on the condition that he would preserve its woodwork, grand double staircase, original tin ceiling and other distinctive architectural features.

Since 2018 it has housed the Second Chance thrift shop.

First Bay store

The Hudson Bay's first retail store opened in Fort Qu'Appelle in 1897. The building which housed the Bay still stands today and is home to the Second Chance thrift shop.

Government of Saskatchewan introduces PST on vapour products

Provincial News
Grasslands News

The Government of Saskatchewan earlier this week introduced amendments to The Provincial Sales Tax Act, 2025 to remove the provincial sales tax (PST) exemption on vapour products. Effective June 1, 2025, the provincial sales tax rate of six per cent will apply to all vapour products in addition to the existing vapour products tax.

"Today's amendment exemplifies our government's commitment to fair tax administration," Deputy Premier and Finance Minister Jim Reiter said. "Shortly, equivalent taxation will apply to all vapour and tobacco products sold in Saskatchewan. This will help discourage the use of these products, especially among youth, who are at risk of long-term, negative health impacts."

Initially announced as part of the 2025-26 Budget, the PST on vapour products is anticipated to increase PST revenues by $3 million annually. However, the benefits are expected to reach far beyond tax revenue.

Nicotine exposure is known to harm healthy brain development in youth and young adults, which can lead to problems with learning, memory and mood and can increase the risk of addiction to other substances.

"We applaud the Saskatchewan Government for its recent announcement that a provincial sales tax will be added to all vapour products," Lung Saskatchewan President and CEO Erin Kaun said. "Increased taxation is one of the most effective strategies in reducing consumption, particularly among youth. We look forward to continuing to work with the government to support a healthier Saskatchewan."

MLA says budget delivers for Saskatchewan

By Ryan Kiedrowski

Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Moosomin-Montmartre MLA Kevin Weedmark says last week's budget is one that delivered for the province on a number of fronts—including saving people money, adding new programs, and balancing the budget.

"I was very impressed," he said. "The government managed to deliver a balanced budget that manages to bring in some new programs—things like that small and medium enterprise tax credit. That's a totally new initiative that's going to help develop our communities. It delivers tax cuts. There are tax cuts in there that are going to affect every individual, every family, every business.

"For individuals, there's a $500 a year increase in the basic exemption for the next four years. So every year, a $500 increase in the exemption on top of the indexation for inflation that is already in there."

"For small businesses it will keep that tax rate at one per cent.

"So it's saving money for individuals, it's adding new programs, and it's a balanced budget in a time when there's a lot of uncertainty around the world, and this is showing the strength and stability of Saskatchewan's fiscal situation, and showing strength and stability in the midst of instability around the world.

"I think managing to bring in some new programs and bring in record funding for municipal revenue sharing, record funding for education, record funding for health care, at the same time as tax cuts and balancing the budget—I think that can only be termed a success in the budgeting process."

The Municipal Revenue Share is a uniquely Saskatchewan program, as Weedmark pointed out.

"There have been steady increase in revenue sharing, especially over the last few years. And that revenue sharing is not something that every province has—it's something that no other province has," he says. "In other provinces, municipal groups are lobbying their governments for something like what we have in Saskatchewan.

"In Saskatchewan, we can provide municipalities with a strong, stable, predictable source of funding that in many provinces they simply don't have. So in addition to their tax base, they have this funding as well."

Weedmark says while posting record education funding in the budget, the education property tax mill rate is going down.

"In education we have record education funding, while at the same time reducing the education property tax mill rate so that all of the weight isn't on home owners and property owners," he says.

"So all in all, this is a budget that manages to deliver on the priorities of Saskatchewan people and bring in brand new things like the new young entrepreneur bursary, which is something that's never existed before. There is also the small and medium enterprise investment tax credit, which sounds like people's eyes should glaze over when they hear it, but that's a program that basically encourages people to invest in very small enterprises—brand new enterprises starting up, or enterprises that are just in their first expansion stage, and I anticipate that that is going to have a huge impact in rural Saskatchewan by rewarding people for investing in local companies that help build their communities.

"So you are managing to bring all of these new programs in. And there is new spending in health. In our riding, for instance, we're seeing $10 million for the Grenfell care home on top of $10 million last year.

"You're seeing funding for paving Highway 8 between Moosomin and Rocanville, which links one of the fastest growing communities in rural Saskatchewan with the world's largest potash mine," Weedmark said. "It's a very busy road and a very needed project."

"So you are managing to see all of that spending in these areas—record health care spending, record education spending, reduced taxes in the greater personal tax exemption and in the reduction in the education property tax mill rate, and in the decision to permanently keep the small business tax rate at one per cent. So you're seeing all of that—new spending, tax savings, and coming out to a balanced budget. So all in all, I think that's pretty phenomenal."

Another area of record funding came in agriculture with $625 million promised for the industry.

"Our agriculture industry is extremely important in this province," Weedmark says. "Some of that is for Crop Insurance to ensure that our farmers, who are doing a world class job of producing food and helping feed the world, are supported. The support for agriculture in this budget just helps them do that."

Supporting small business

Weedmark is no stranger to the world of small business. In addition to being a small business owner, he is also the president of the Moosomin Chamber of Commerce. He says there are some important measures in the budget to support small and medium sized business, and encourage young people to get into business.

"I have so much respect for every small business owner. I didn't start the business from scratch, but I started with nothing," he said. "I borrowed everything I needed to buy that business, and I needed to make a success of it to pay for it.

"I didn't inherit the business, I started with nothing, built a business, and I can tell you that takes a lot of work no matter what," he said. "I really respect everyone who takes the risk and puts in the work to build and grow a small business.

"I think some of these measures in the budget, keeping that tax rate at one per cent, that small and medium enterprise investment tax credit, and even that young entrepreneur bursary, all of those help businesses grow and expand and help them understand that what they are doing is appreciated.

"That $5,000 youth bursary, it's not an insignificant amount for a brand new person starting in a business, but it also shows them that the province is behind them and believes in what they are doing.

"In the case of Moosomin, the Chamber of Commerce is leveraging that $5,000 bursary and they're trying to build programs around it," he said. "As we speak right now, in the high school in Moosomin is a group of individuals who are speaking to the Grade 10 students about entrepreneurship and about why they might want to consider entrepreneurship. It's something that a lot of kids might not consider and might not hear a lot about in the school system.

"The $5,000 bursary is one thing, but you have communities that are taking that and building around that to improve services for people who are just starting out. In Moosomin there are plans to get a mentorship program going, to try to encourage young people to get into business and give them support once they are into business.

"That $5,000 bursary, that was the catalyst for that, and that is now being leveraged and it is going to make a big difference for a lot of young entrepreneurs," Weedmark said. "You have to respect and you have to support those people who are willing to take a risk and go into business."

Strong financial position

Weedmark says tabling a budget with a surplus

"I'll call it a balanced budget, because that's obviously a very small surplus when you're talking about a $21 billion budget," Weedmark said.

"But I think it's a real achievement. To have record spending in revenue sharing, record spending in health, record spending in education, some great new programs coming out of this budget, and at the same time, be reducing taxes, reducing personal taxes, business taxes, and bringing down the education mill rate, and balancing the budget, to me, that's a slam dunk. And it puts us in a strong fiscal position so that if things develop with the tariffs, we are in a very, very strong position to start with. That's where we want to be.

"This budget puts Saskatchewan in one of the strongest financial positions among provinces, but all of that is possible only because of the strong state of the provincial economy, and that is thanks to the resourcefulness, the resilience, the drive of Saskatchewan people," Weedmark says. "I'm so proud of the people of our province and proud of our government for producing a balanced budget that will keep this province on a strong, steady footing."

Workshop promotes dementia-friendly community

By Sarah Pacio
Grasslands News

Municipal leaders are seeking to make Broadview a dementia friendly community. Mayor Colleen Umpher-ville explained that the topic was discussed at a meeting she attended in Moosomin, and it led her to consider the implications for the Town of Broadview.

“It’s really about making your community aware, reducing the stigma and increasing the support for people that are dealing with dementia,” the mayor stated.

According to the Alzheimer Society of Canada, an estimated 771,939 people in Canada currently live with dementia and this could increase to nearly 1 million by the year 2030. There are more than 25 different causes for dementia, with Alzheimer’s disease being the most common.

Mayor Umpher-ville acknowledged that it is difficult to estimate the number of individuals in Broadview who are living with dementia, but she noted there are two senior care homes located in the town. Moreover, she believes it is important to provide a safe environment for them so that they can remain active in the community.

“Isolation happens with the one that is suffering, plus the caregiver, and it’s a difficult path,” Umpher-ville said. “If we don’t break the stigma, then people that are dealing with it isolate themselves instead of getting out to community events.”

Education is an important first step, so community members are invited to attend a free information session about dementia on April 8 at 2 p.m. in the Broad-view Library.

Lori Tulloch will facilitate the session, sharing the knowledge she has gained through her experiences as a nurse caring for patients with dementia. Local residents may also be acquainted with Tulloch through her role on the Reopen Broadview Hospital Committee.

The meeting on April 8 will provide information about signs that may indicate dementia onset, or the ABC’s of dementia. The presenter will also discuss steps that can be taken to promote safety or provide assistance for individuals with dementia who are living in the community. This could include improved signage or lighting in local business, as well as providing community members and business owners with strategies for helping a senior who is lost.

The Alzheimer Society notes that “family and friends provide more than 580 million hours of care to people living with dementia” each year, so Tulloch may also comment on various means of providing support to these caregivers.

Sask. gov't continues to pile debt onto Saskatchewanians

Provincial News
Grasslands News

The Canadian Taxpayers Federation is calling on the Saskatchewan government to cut spending and stop borrowing money after increasing the debt by $2.4 billion in Budget 2025.

"It's irresponsible for the government to continue to borrow more money and pile debt onto taxpayers," said Gage Haubrich, CTF Prairie Director. "Taxpayers can't afford to keep having the government waste millions of dollars on debt interest payments every year."

The government is increasing the debt by $2.4 billion compared to last year's budget. By the end of the year, the debt will be $23.5 billion.

Interest payments on the debt will cost taxpayers $878.4 million this year, working out to $705 per Saskatchewanian. Debt interest payments will cost taxpayers more than $2.4 million per month.

The government is spending $909 million more this year, compared to last year's budget. The government is also taking in $1.2 billion more in taxes. The budget increases spending in all departments but one.

Tariffs could decrease the government's revenue by $1.4 billion, according to the budget.

"The government is increasing the debt by more than $6.5 million every single day," said Haubrich. "If tariffs hit Saskatchewan hard, taxpayers will be stuck paying higher debt interest payments to cover even more government loans."

The Saskatchewan Party says that one of its guiding principles is the "steady, gradual reduction in government spending and taxation while maintaining a firm commitment to balanced budgets."

Fort Knox make history with first berth to finals

- continued from front page

night after the Delisle Bruins (29-9-0-2) forced a seventh and deciding game in the Bob Dybvig Division final with a 6-2 win over the Saskatoon Westleys (31-6-0-3).

Whoever it is though, and whatever the result, it will all have added up to a memorable debut season behind a junior B bench for Scott.

Scott was hired by the Knox in June to succeed Tucker Neuberger, who resigned after two seasons to focus on work and education pursuits.

"It's been special," Scott said. "The community of Fort Qu'Appelle, they support this group so well. They understand that the things that (general manager) Jarrod Williams and his family do for the community with the Fort Knox, it's a thankless job... so whenever the community has the opportunity to pay it back by supporting the group and supporting our events, it shows that things we do as a group and things Jarrod and his family do, they don't go unnoticed."

Scott grew up in Whitewood, played under-18 AAA hockey in Yorkton and a handful of Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League games between Melville and Weyburn, before finishing his junior hockey career in Fort Qu'Appelle during the final season (2006-07) of the old South Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League.

The SSJHL merged with its northern counterpart the following season to form the PJHL.

Scott has since coached extensively at Athol Murray College of Notre Dame, been involved with Hockey Saskatchewan's male U16 and U18 programs, worked as co-owner and lead instructor for Western Prospects Hockey Development.

"Coming out of Notre Dame, I wouldn't say too many things have changed as far as the way that I coach," said Scott. "The thing is you just have to get to know your players really, really early in the year."

"Ultimately yeah, you have 20 guys you have to have on board but realistically every player you have to treat differently. Whether it's criticism or praise, every player takes it differently. So, it's about understanding how to coach 20 individuals and then using those strategies to build a cohesive group."

Automatic transmissions are a vital component of modern vehicles, responsible for shifting gears seamlessly without driver intervention. However, they can be prone to wear and mechanical failures over time. Understanding common automatic transmission issues, repair solutions, and maintenance tips can help prolong its lifespan and ensure smooth vehicle operation. Whether you need minor repairs or a full replacement, consulting Downtown Automatic Transmission Limited is essential to ensuring your vehicle's longevity and performance.

If your vehicle hesitates when shifting gears or experiences rough gear changes, it could be due to a faulty transmission control module, damaged torque converter, or deteriorated transmission bands.

At the first sign of transmission trouble, seek professional diagnostics at Downtown Automatic Transmission Limited to prevent more significant damage.

Established in 1964 Downtown Automatic Transmission Limited a family owned business is guided by local owners, Blaine Hazzard and Charmaine Hazzard. They are assisted by a professional team.

Fort Knox makes history

The Fort Knox of the Prairie Junior Hockey League is having a historic season after earning a spot to the league championship for the first time in the team's 29-year history. PHJL management representative Dale Lewgood (top right) holds the Bill Johnson Division Challenge cup that was presented to Fort Knox this year. Members of the team (top left) believe that holding or even touching the trophy could jinx their chances of winning the provincial championship. The Knox were to find out Wednesday night who they would face in the PJHL finals.

Mils and Terriers battle

First Round of SJHL Playoffs

By Darcy Gross
Grasslands News

The CN Community Centre was rocking as the Melville Millionaires earned their first win in the playoffs on home ice March 25.

More than 1,500 were in attendance for the exciting game that featured spectacular goaltending and the Millionaires' smothering defence.

Melville Millionaires 5 (March 25)

Goaltender Ben Laurette made 38 saves and Gaborik Carlson lit the lamp twice as the Millionaires halved the Terriers first round playoff series lead to 2-1.

Brendan Olson, Simon Parini and Raiden Zacharias each notched a single goal for the Millionaires with assists coming from Brodie Hicks, Boston Harkness, Will Forsberg, Matt Kjemhus and Parini.

The Millionaires, who led 1-0 after the first period and 4-1 after two, outshot the Terriers 42-40.

The Millionaires were whistled for nine of the game's 16 minors while each club was assessed a 10-minute misconduct.

If the Melville Millionaires' SJHL season comes to an end after this series, they'll look back on game 2 on March 23 as a key turning point.

The Millionaires held the lead more than once in this contest, going ahead 5-4 late in the final frame, but the Terriers roared back, knotting the game at 5-5 with just four ticks left on the game clock.

They put the game away in the first overtime, scoring their third powerplay marker of the contest.

"We definitely should have come away with a win," Johnson admitted. "Again,

Mustangs stampede Wheat Kings in first two games

By Braedyn Wozniak
Grasslands News

Yellowgrass Wheat Kings 2 at Wolseley Mustangs 5 (March 21)

The Wolseley Mustangs kicked off the best-of-five Jr. C finals with a 5-2 win at home over the Yellowgrass Wheat Kings Friday, March 21st.

Wolseley and Yellowgrass have met in the playoffs each of the last three seasons, with the Wheat Kings eliminating the Mustangs in each series on their way to three straight QVJHL titles.

Bennett Godfried started the scoring for the Mustangs with a wrist-shot from the point which beat Wheat Kings' goaltender Logan Salamondra just under the glove.

From there on it was the Owen Ross show, as the young power forward scored an unassisted beauty flying down the right wall, then banged in a rebound to give the Mustangs a 3-0 lead.

The Wheat Kings would stop the bleeding with a top corner snipe off the rush from Kael Dillon with 19 seconds left, bringing the score to 3-1 heading in to the 2nd.

Yellowgrass wasn't done there, as Bryck Kemp buried a powerplay goal one-minute into the 2nd to close the gap to one.

But Wolseley quickly answered with a Connor Webster powerplay goal of their own, assisted by Dylan Johanson and Carter Phythian.

Owen Ross then topped off his best night as a Mustang with a breakaway dagger to get the hat-trick and ice the game for the Mustangs.

Wolseley goaltender Spencer Phythian shut down any hopes of a 3rd period Yellowgrass comeback, shutting the door in a scoreless third period.

The Mustangs are looking to claim back the Jr. C throne as their last championship came in 2019. This is their 6th finals appearance in the last seven years, winning two titles in that span. (Wolseley was up two games to none on Regina in the 2020 finals before Covid-19 ended the season).

Wolseley Mustangs 3 at Yellowgrass Wheat Kings 1 (March 22)

Wolseley Mustangs are one win away from the QVJHL Jr. C title after a 3-1 win in Yellowgrass on Saturday, March 22nd.

In an all-important game two, Will Noble sniped a short side beauty off a pass from Lachlan Pollock 50 seconds in to give the Mustangs the early lead.

The Wheat Kings brought the physicality early and often, determined to make a statement and avoid falling down 2-0 in the series.

However, they simply couldn't break QVJHL Goaltender of the Year Spencer "Spongey" Phythian, who turned away a barrage of shots to keep the lead.

Yellowgrass continued to apply the pressure in the 2nd, and nearly tied the game with a rebound shot that came in after the net was knocked off. The goal was waved off.

On an ensuing Yellowgrass powerplay, a turnover at the blueline and an impressive individual effort from Mustangs Captain Jackson Baran to get the puck on net led to Will Noble's 2nd of the game on a rebound.

The game flipped with the 2-0 lead, as the Mustangs applied the pressure in the last 10-minutes of the 2nd.

In what started as a quiet 3rd period, things got interesting near the end. A 5-on-3 powerplay goal by Kael Dillon brought the Wheat Kings within one with eight minutes left to play.

But Will Noble, in what was a career night for the Mustangs' rookie, would extend the lead just one minute later with a beautiful breakaway move to complete the hat-trick, and secure the victory.

The Mustangs will look to bring it home Friday, March 28th in Wolseley. Game 4 will be played Saturday in Yellowgrass, if needed.

GOAL

Wolseley Mustang's Bennet Godfried (#7) celebrates his opening goal in game one against the Yellowgrass Wheat Kings. The Mustangs won the game 5-2 at home on Friday, March 21.

Highway 10 playoffs continue

it was a defensive zone draw late in the game that killed us."

The Millionaires didn't have much in the way of answers for the Terriers' powerplay, that was three-for-four on the night.

"Yorkton's ability to draw penalties hurt us," added the Millionaires' bench boss. "We also lost some defensive assignments on the penalty kill."

The Millionaires held leads of 3-1 and 4-2 in the contest, but couldn't put the Terriers away, despite their solid play.

"All in all, it was a game that I was mostly happy with, but breakdowns and some poor decisions and performances cost us."

The Millionaires led 4-2 after the first period and the game was knotted at 4-4 as the teams headed to the third.

Alex Morrison, Preston Baerwald and Carlson, who missed game 1 due to illness, led the Millionaires' attack with a goal and an assist each.

Jadon Iyogun and Noah Belles-Isles rounded out Melville's scoring with singles as Kjemhus and Harkness each had a pair of assists.

Louis Nadeau, Jackson Lee and Parini each chipped in with a set-up point.

Nick Genette got the start in goal for the Millionaires and turned aside 23 of the 29 shots he faced as Melville skaters tested Terriers' goalie Ethan Farrow 31 times.

The Millionaires were the more penalized of the two competing squads, drawing five of seven minors and one of two 10 minute misconducts.

Melville Millionaires 1 at Yorkton Terriers 4 (March 21)

In the first game of the series, the Millionaires came out flat, and couldn't find enough offense to stay with the Terriers.

"In game 1, we didn't show up and we weren't able to capitalize on the few chances we got," Johnson said. "We had some guys who had a really good game, but not enough guys going, to win."

This game was tied 1-1 after the first period, with the Terriers going ahead 3-1 after 40 minutes of play.

Parini scored the Millionaires' lone goal, a powerplay marker, with assists going to Iyogun and Harkness.

The Terriers outshot the Millionaires 33-19 with Laurette taking the loss between the pipes for the Mills.

The Terriers led the penalty parade in this contest, getting whistled for eight of the 14 minor infractions called.

The Millionaires have made a number of uncharacteristic mistakes in the first two games of the series and if they're to get back into it, they'll have to clean up their act, especially in their own end.

"Obviously, our structure, awareness and play off defensive zone draws has killed us, in both games," explained Johnson.

The game plan for now, is a simple one.

"We just need to win now. We have to either find a way or make one."

The Mills and Terriers were back at the CNCC on March 26 and are slated to go at it in game five at Yorkton on March 28 with the teams returning to Melville if a game six is needed on March 29.

If a seventh game is required, it will go April 1 in Yorkton.

Start time for all games is 7 p.m.

SJHL names Millionaires' Iyogun Most Sportsmanlike Player of the Year

By Jacob Miller
Grasslands News

The Melville Millionaires' Jadon Iyogun was named the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League's (SJHL) Most Sportsmanlike Player of the Year.

Throughout the season, the Tennessee State NCAA Division I commit has racked up only 2-minutes of penalties out of the 51 games he has played. Iyogun also has three short handed goals.

The bio on the SJHL website says "Given the volume of minutes and the importance of his role with the Mills, the fact he only had two penalty minutes all campaign while playing for a hard-nosed coach like Doug Johnson is nothing short of remarkable. How often does a star player have more short-handed goals (three) than penalty minutes? It's hard to imagine it happens very often. To go a step further, nobody has had more short-handed goals over the last two seasons combined than Iyogun's eight, so the fact he has very rarely been in the box himself has paid enormous dividends for Melville."

Iyogun also has had 27 assists and 48 points throughout the 24-25 season.

Water issues a concern at Indian Head's water plant

By Sarah Pacio
Grasslands News

Indian Head town council held its regular meeting at 7 p.m. on March 24. The session included a public hearing, delegation and budget discussion.

Public Hearing –

Multi-plex Development

Metis Nation – Saskatchewan (MN-S) is interested in constructing a multi-plex to provide senior housing in Indian Head. Delegates met with council in February to discuss the proposed development and a preferred location on Water Street.

MN-S had not yet purchased the properties but the two lots where they hoped to build would need to be rezoned from R1 (single dwelling) to R2 (multi-unit dwelling) to accommodate the proposed development. Council directed town administration to begin the process of amending the zoning bylaw. This included scheduling a public hearing for March 24.

One of the properties that MN-S was interested in developing on Water Street sold to another developer following MN-S's meeting with council last month.

CAO Cam Thauberger informed council that MN-S is exploring alternative locations in Indian Head for the proposed development.

Council proceeded with the public hearing on Monday evening as it had already been advertised. However, no one attended the meeting and the bylaw amendment for Water Street was not passed due to the change in MN-S's plans.

Delegation – Water Plant

Council met with Conrad Schreiner, the town's Public Works Foreman, and Marc Gauthier from Municipal Utilities to discuss a recurring issue at Indian Head's water plant.

Schreiner observed a decrease in water flow while conducting the regular backwash routine. The flow indicators on the filters show only 250 gallons per minute rather than the appropriate 450 gallons per minute. There also appears to be a buildup of material on the filters.

Water samples, turbidity and general function are still satisfactory for producing water for the community; however, there is potential for future problems if the situation is not addressed.

The town consulted Gauthier, who is familiar with the town's infrastructure system. He noted that it is a recurring problem: records indicate that filters at the Indian Head water plant have required cleaning or replacement every three to four years. He said this is very unusual since municipalities typically only replace filters when they wear out after 12 to 15 years.

Gauthier told council there appears to be a gradual buildup within the system's lateral lines, and he believes it is caused by insufficient pressure. Indian Head's system relies only on tank pressure for backwashing and this provides a maximum of 22 psi, while water plants in most other municipalities operate with a pump that produces 50 to 60 psi.

He recommended that a variable speed pump be installed at Indian Head's water plant to increase the flow and ensure lines and filters are consistently cleared. Gauthier advised council that it could take a minimum of eight weeks for delivery of the pump but only three days to install it, with no disruption to water service for residents.

Council discussed the information provided by Schreiner and Gauthier. Councillors noted that there are sufficient funds in reserves and stated that installing a pump could save money over time since the filters would not need servicing as frequently, so they approved the purchase of the necessary equipment.

Provincial and Municipal Budgets

Mayor Steven Cole, Councillor Pieter Cruson and CAO Cam Thauberger attended the provincial budget announcement at the Legislature on March 19. They shared highlights with council and noted that they spoke with MLA Kevin Weedmark regarding positive implications for the community, such as new tax incentives for businesses and increases to the Municipal Revenue Sharing grant.

Council will meet on April 2 to discuss various aspects of the municipal budget, including potential equipment costs, staff wages, and mill rates.

Sask. NDP says budget not focused on future

By Jacob Miller
Grasslands News

The Saskatchewan NDP say that the recently released provincial budget is not focused on the future.

Matt Love, Sask NDP Shadow Minister for Education, spoke with Grasslands News about the Sask Party's 2025 budget.

"It's completely denying a number of the realities that we face in the province and as a country today," said Love. "There's nothing in this provincial budget to respond to the Trade War started by Donald Trump. There are no measures to protect workers, AG producers, small businesses, industry. There's nothing at all to respond to this, this trade war that we're in."

Love said that the NDP has been clear that the province needs a Team Sask and a Team Canada approach to the tariffs. "We've offered to work together with the government, work with parties, other leaders and provinces and the federal government to make sure that we have that elbows up approach to defending our sovereignty, to defending our way of life," said Love.

Love said that they would have addressed the tariffs in the budget and plan around them.

"We would have had a plan to make sure that Saskatchewan industry, business and workers are protected," said Love. "We've seen other provinces bring forward contingency plans for if and when tariffs are imposed to make sure that supports are in place. And again, Premier Moe and the Sask Party came forward with nothing, no plan at all. It's hard to take it seriously, but they've come forward with a budget that pretends the last three months of threats from the American president are not happening."

Education and health care are also underfunded.

Love said that the Sask Party plans to spend less on education and healthcare in 2025.

"There's a lot of talk from the finance minister today about his plans, but the bottom line is that in their own budget document they indicate that they plan to spend less on those two key areas this year compared to what they actually spent last year. We think this is the wrong approach," said Love.

Love said that the NDP know that there are challenges in classrooms, emergency rooms are full, and that they are listening to healthcare workers.

"It's a budget that doesn't focus on the future that we can have and that the Saskatchewan people deserve," said Love.

Underdog Jays show potential

By Bruce Penton
Sports Columnist

Toronto Blue Jays have gone eight full seasons without winning a playoff series and every baseball expert posting pre-season prognostications says that number will likely be nine when the 162-season comes to a close Sept. 28.

In fact, the oddsmakers in Las Vegas predict the Blue Jays will finish fifth in the five-team American League East, perhaps the toughest division in baseball. All this despite an outstanding spring training season, in which they led the A.L. in wins.

But you never know. Maybe outfielder Addison Barger will carry his impressive spring training stats into the regular season or maybe he'll be sent down to Buffalo. Maybe 41-year-old Max Scherzer will find his 2013-18 magic and post a 20-7 record or something similar. His colleagues in the starting pitcher rotation include veterans with talented arms — Chris Bassitt, Kevin Gausman, Jose Berrios and last year's breakout star, Bowden Francis, who posted an 8-5 record with a 3.30 ERA. Potentially, that group could thrive, especially if the offence packs a bit more punch than it did last year.

Vladimir Guerrero, Jr., who has reportedly cut off negotiations on a contract extension and could become a free agent, or a trading chip, could have a monster year, especially if he's intent on impressing potential suitors for his free-agent talents. Guerrero, Jr., batted .323 last year with 30 home runs, and with free-agent slugger Anthony Santander batting either before him in the lineup, or following him, pitchers will have to think twice about pitching around the Jays' two big bangers.

Other solid bats for the Blue Jays belong to Bo Bichette, who suffered through an injury-plagued season last year, and free-agent signee Andres Gimenez. Bichette played only 81 games and batted a lowly .225 in 2024, but he's a career .290 hitter and if he's healthy for 162 games, another season around .300 can be expected. Gimenez is expected to start at second base after four seasons with Cleveland Guardians.

Santander, who crushed 44 homers for Baltimore last year, will patrol the outfield with George Springer and Daulton Varsho, both of whom are coming off so-so seasons in 2024, but still carrying potent bats. Springer has averaged 23 home runs a season during his 11-year career while Varsho, who has played only three full seasons, has averaged 21 homers when he's played a full year.

Surprise contributors to the Jays could be infielder Will Wagner, who batted .305 in 24 games for the Jays after being acquired last July from Houston for pitcher Yusei Kikuch, and Barger, who batted only .197 last year but has enjoyed a tremendous spring, hitting .370 in his first 14 games.

"The floor was raised because of our own guys' expectations after the way things went last season," manager John Schneider told Rob Longley of the Toronto Sun. "And then having guys like Max (Scherzer), (Anthony Santander), (Andrés) Giménez come in ... you add those personalities and you kind of see guys feeding off each other."

• Steve Simmons of the Toronto Sun, lamenting

Sports Column
By Bruce Penton

Mitch Marner's lack of joy in the public forum: "Often in post-game or off-day interviews, he appears as though he's on the witness stand for a trial of something he's perceived to have done wrong."

• Bob Molinaro of pilotonline.com (Hampton, Va.): "With the NFL reporting no injuries on the tush push in 2024, critics within the league will have to come up with another reason to ban the play. An inability to stop Jalen Hurts can't be one of them."

• Globe and Mail columnist Cathal Kelly, on the Leafs' problems: "The Leafs don't need more centres. They need more therapists."

• Another one from Cathal Kelly: "The Leafs aren't a bad team. They're a bad marriage. Every April, they break up. And every summer, despite being warned by all their friends, they get back together."

• Janice Hough of leftcoastsportsbabe.com: "RIP George Foreman, only 76. Not a boxing fan but he was one of the greatest. Wonder how many millennials think of him as the grill man?"

• Vancouver comedy guy Torben Rolfson: "The Dallas Mavericks announced a season-ticket increase for next year. That should go over well. 'Hey, we traded away the most popular player in history. How do we top that?' Just watch."

• Another one from Rolfson: "Giannis Antetokounmpo just joined the 20,000 career point club and can now access the VIP lounge at the Milwaukee international airport."

• Headline at fark.com, after Sandro Mamukelashvili of the San Antonio Spurs scored 34 points in 19 minutes: "Spurs player sets record in 19 minutes. I think the record is how many times announcers mispronounced his name."

• Another fark.com offering: "Ref accidentally helps Leafs win, vows to get back to screwing them over in the playoffs."

• Jack Finarelli on his sportscurmudgeon.com website, suggesting the new owners of the Boston Celtics may have overpaid with their $6.1 billion purchase of the team, going on to quote comedian Steve Martin: "I love money. I love everything about it. I bought some pretty good stuff. Got me a $300 pair of socks. Got a fur sink. An electric dog polisher. A gasoline powered turtle-neck sweater. And, of course, I bought some dumb stuff, too."

West coast roots duo to perform at QVCA April 11

Warren Murffit and Kate Main

SUBMITTED | GRASSLANDS NEWS

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

Not only does Warren Murffit play the guitar, the Vancouver roots singer and songwriter also makes them. He's a luthier and furniture maker who grew up listening to country music.

"I listened to Ian Tyson, and knew music was for me. I got serious about performing about 25 years ago. I'm a musician who builds guitars and I have done that for a number of years."

Murffit also teamed up with vocalist Kate Main and the duo will be performing at the Qu'Appelle Centre for the Arts on Friday, April 11.

"We both have other projects on the side, but we got together about 16 years ago because we're both song writers."

Together they honed their harmonies by playing their original compositions for audiences large and small. Their music plumbs the depths of bluegrass, country and swing.

Main is originally from Toronto where she worked as a costume designer in theatre before moving west.

"My parents had a hobby farm near Dundas so I spent most of my summers in rural Ontario where I was exposed to country music," she told Grasslands News.

"I didn't have a music community until I moved to Vancouver. I play bass, and met Warren through the local music scene. The more we played, the more we jammed, the more we played in front of crowds, the more we play," she said.

The duo has recorded three albums together.

Main said she has driven across Canada so many times and remembers Saskatchewan because of a speeding ticket she got driving across the prairie.

"I love driving, it is the best way to see Canada," she said. "I love to meet people, talk to people."

It is the fourth Home Roots tour she and Murffit have done together, but the first in Saskatchewan. "You are never guaranteed an audience, but for those who show up, it will be a fun night for sure."

Murffit and Main play the Qu'Appelle Valley Centre for the Arts on Friday, April 11 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25.

Mainline Music festival in Wolseley

Submitted
Grasslands News

The Wolseley Town Hall/Opera House will be buzzing with music during the Mainline Music Festival that begins on April 6.

This year's event welcomes two adjudicators to Wolseley. Dr Ron de Jager from Caronport will give performers feedback on their entries in spoken word, voice, musical theatre, brass, percussion and choral.

Dr. de Jager has a varied background in the field of performance, including performances in the areas of solo recitals, opera, oratorio, musical theatre, ballet and film. As a professor at Briercrest College, he enjoys teaching private voice, vocal pedagogy, vocal master class, musical theatre workshop and acting.

The schedule for Sunday, April 6 is as follows: 10:30 a.m. Spoken Word 1:15 p.m. Voice 2:15 p.m. Voice and Musical Theatre 3:30 p.m. Musical Theatre 6:30 p.m. Musical Theatre and Brass.

Presentations on Monday, April 7 will include: 9:15 a.m. Ensemble, Percussion, Voice 12:45 p.m. Dr. Isman School Classes 2:30 p.m. Musical Theatre and Voice.

Audrey Watson

Piano will take place on Tuesday, April 8 and Wednesday, April 9, with adjudicator Audrey Watson from Rosthern.

Watson is a Saskatchewan native, who studied piano with many of the province's top piano instructors as both a young person and adult. Currently pausing from piano teaching to pursue traveling, playing piano for her church, and studying the violin, Audrey will surely bring a wealth of musical insights to our local piano students.

Piano competitions will

begin on Tuesday, April 8, with sessions starting at 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 1:15 p.m., 2:45 p.m., 4:15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Piano will wrap up on Wednesday, April 9, with sessions at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Audrey will be conducting a workshop for all piano participants at 2 p.m.

The festival will conclude with the finale program on Tuesday, April 15 at 7 p.m. This will be a concert featuring selected performers, and awards ceremony.

The public is welcome to attend all sessions of competition and the Festival Finale; entry is by donation.

Obituary Roger Allen Caughlin

Oct. 3, 1947 - March 18, 2025

It is with great sadness that the family of Roger Allen Caughlin announces his sudden passing on Tuesday, March 18, 2025, following extensive surgery.

Roger was the firstborn child of Allen and Jenny Caughlin, on Oct. 3, 1947. He was born in Tisdale, Sask. This is where he attended school, graduating from Grade 12 in 1965. During his time at home, he was expected to do many chores with the crops, the animals and keeping the wood box full. Milk cows needed to be milked twice a day, so a strong work ethic was instilled.

His academic standing was good and he was off to the University of Saskatchewan where he achieved his Bachelor of Education. His first teaching job was in Indian Head. It became his forever home. He was warmly welcomed by people here and he embraced the community. He taught his entire career in this community and drove the school bus. He continued with the school bus for 20 years after his retirement. He created close and lasting bonds with his students, inside and outside of the classroom. He planned and chaperoned mountain ski trips, canoe trips in Northern Saskatchewan and tours in Europe with Grade 11 and 12 students.

He has served on so many boards over the years, particularly in his retirement. Most significantly, the Indian Head Housing Authority, Council of St. Andrew's United Church and chairman of the Condo Board at Sun View Place.

Roger loved good food: preparing it, serving it and most of all eating it. He often said he "lived to eat" – the richer and sweeter the food, the better he liked it.

He also had an appreciation for farming, nurtured by working with local farmers around Indian Head and working on his brother's farm in Tisdale. Till the end of his life, he was always curious to know how things were going on the farm.

He had a very wide circle of friends and he loved to be able to do errands for them and to entertain them in his home with food and drinks. He found reward for himself in helping other people.

He loved to travel, most particularly his annual trip to Hawaii with a group of very close friends. Skiing in the Canadian Rockies was a favourite and he was proud of the fact that he got to ski for free after the age of 75 years. He loved time spent at the family cabin at Greenwater Lake, also with so many friends. Most recently, in November, he joined a group of 22 family members to spend a week at a resort near Cancun, Mexico. It was a most special time, particularly in light of the fact that it was his last big trip. The photo we have used here was taken at that time.

Less meaningful, but also important to Roger were his love of new, high end and shiny cars, gadgets and gizmos of any kind.

Roger is survived by his sister Marilyn Caughlin and George Peters; his brother Jim Caughlin and Glenda; and his aunt Josephine Kulyk. He had six nieces and nephews: Rebecca Whaley (Andrew MacKenzie), Daniel Whaley (Kristy), Lisa Mitchell (Paul), Cori Ellen Caughlin (Sebastian Chlebek), Robert Caughlin (Amy) and Paul Caughlin (Linda) Also important to him were his 15 grand-nieces and nephews and numerous cousins.

The Celebration of his life will be held in St. Andrew's United Church, Indian Head, Sask. on Saturday, April 12, 2025 at 2:00 p.m., officiated by Don Jewitt.

Online condolences may be made at www.tubmanfh.com

Obituary Lucy Klus (nee Sass)

Sept. 10, 1939 - March 6, 2025

Lucy (nee Sass) Klus passed away peacefully with family by her side on Thursday, March 6, 2025 at St. Peter's Hospital in Melville, SK at the age of 85.

Lucy was born on Sept. 10, 1939 on the Sass family farm in the Willowbrook area, to Michael and Annie (nee Petrowsky) Sass. She was the second oldest of 10 children.

Lucy attended Halech School near Goodeve until the family moved to the Jedburgh area. She continued her education at the Folkstone school in the Beaverville area until she completed grade eight. Lucy moved to Melville where she worked as a nanny and later waitressed at a café.

Lucy found the love of her life when she met Melvin. They were united in marriage on Oct. 21, 1961 at St. Michael's Ukrainian Catholic Church in Goodeve, SK. Melvin and Lucy moved onto the Klus family farm in Goodeve, where they raised their three children, Debbie born in 1962, Connie in 1964 and Lisa in 1977. Lucy and Melvin remained on the farm until Melvin's health declined and they moved to Melville.

Lucy was blessed with six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. She never passed up an opportunity to play cards, build a puzzle or join a family camping trip. Grandchildren never went home without homemade food or some canned goods. Lucy loved attending their baptisms, dance recitals, skating carnivals, weddings and any other opportunity she had to spend time with family.

Lucy loved gardening and spent many hours maintaining her yard and flower beds and always maintained a spotless home. She was a great cook always baking and making everyone's favourites; perogies, cabbage rolls and her favourite angel food cake with raspberries from the garden. Lucy was an active member in her church and actively served with the ladies in the church and hall. Lucy loved volunteering with the Thrift Shop and developed many long-lasting friendships and always enjoyed coffee with her friends at Nellie's.

Lucy was a very hard worker and was passionate about the farm even after moving to Melville. She would visit and stay at the farm regularly for seeding, harvest or anytime she could lend a hand. She took pride in cooking meals during harvest and often delivering them to the field.

Lucy was predeceased by her husband, Melvin Klus; parents, Michael and Annie (nee Petrowsky) Sass; in-laws John and Maria (nee Marady) Klus; brother Victor Sass, sister-in-laws Audrey Sass and Angeline Sass; and brother-in-law Curley Yagelniski.

She leaves to mourn her passing her three children: Debbie (Craig) Sawchuk, Connie (Darrell) Rathgeber, Lisa (Derek) Bell; grandchildren, Amanda (Derek) Mucha, Travis Sawchuk (Caitlyn Powell), Tyler Sawchuk (Andrea Revet), Daniel (Taylor) Rathgeber, Kaitlyn (Carter) Berg, Hannah Bell; great-grandchildren Madison and Makena Mucha, Emily, Sophie, Charlotte and Sam Sawchuk and Elsie Berg; her sisters Julia (William) Zenkewich, Rose (George) Spelay, Iris (James) Beblow, Grace (Lovern) Yagelniski, Gloria (Gordon) Rhinas, Christine Yagelniski; brothers Howard (Joan) Sass, Joe Sass; sister-in-law Nettie Sass and numerous nieces, nephews, cousins and family friends.

Requiem Divine Liturgy was celebrated on Wednesday, March 12, 2025 at 1:00 p.m. from St. George's Ukrainian Catholic Church in Melville with Rev. Fr. Basil Malowany as the Celebrant.

Arrangements were by Bailey's Funeral Home, Melville.

Obituary Hilda Piller

March 23, 1927 - March 14, 2025

Hilda Piller of Melville, beloved mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, passed away peacefully Friday, March 14, 2025, at St. Paul Lutheran Home in Melville, SK. She was 97 years old.

Hilda was predeceased by her parents, Bernard and Hertha Biberdorf; her husband, Edwin (Ed) Piller; daughter Terri Hodges; grandson Travis Hodges; sisters Wilma Olson, Helmy (Ken) Lyons; brother Hugo Biberdorf; sister-in-law Ruth Biberdorf; in-laws Evelyn (George) Krieger, Ruby (Gordon) Schweitzer, Alfred (Hazel) Piller, Tom (Anita) Piller and Jerry (Elfrieda) Piller; and sister-in-law Jackie Piller

She leaves to mourn: her daughter, Janie (Mike) Hogan; son Phil (Kathy) Piller; son-in-law John Hodges; grandchildren Jayton (Rachel) Hodges, Brianna Hodges, Daniel (Rahwa) Hogan, Erin (Justin) Hogan, Thomas Piller and Taylor (Laura) Piller; great-grandchildren Reese, Belle, Lincoln, Elijah and Hugo; brothers Werner (Laura) Biberdorf and Oswald Biberdorf; sister-in-law Hertha Biberdorf; brothers-in-law Marvin Olson and Don (Yvette) Piller; as well as numerous nieces and nephews.

Hilda was born on March 23, 1927, in the small German colony of Annette, Russia (now Ukraine). She and her parents immigrated to Canada in 1929 and settled on a farm near Frobisher, SK. There she was raised with five siblings. Following high school, Hilda attended nursing college in Winnipeg, MB, where she earned her LPN diploma. It was while working at the Neudorf Hospital that she met the love of her life, a teacher, Ed Piller, and they were married in 1952. In 1958, they moved to Melville. They had three children (Terri, Janie and Phil) and seven grandchildren (Jayton, Brianna, Travis, Thomas, Daniel, Taylor and Erin).

Hilda loved the busy job of raising her family, while also enjoying favourite activities such as gardening, reading, crocheting and, of course, baking. Mom loved her sweets!! She was an active member of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. Eventually, Hilda returned to work part-time as an LPN at St. Paul Lutheran Home, where she enjoyed working for many years until her retirement.

Hilda and Ed's greatest joys were time spent with family and friends. There were many happy years of camping, fishing and entertaining at their cabin at Crooked Lake, which had eventually become their home. Mom loved cooking meals for everyone who came to visit. They also enjoyed many winter getaways to Arizona.

In 2000, Hilda suffered the sudden loss of her dear husband, Ed. Returning to live in Melville, her life revolved around spending precious time with her family. During these years, she was blessed with five beautiful great-grandchildren (Reese, Belle, Lincoln, Elijah and Hugo).

Mom will be greatly missed and fondly remembered for her selfless, gentle nature, sense of humour and sweet smile that she displayed until her last days.

The family would like to extend special thanks to Pastor Dawn and to the staff at St. Paul Lutheran Home. Their support, compassion and professional care of Hilda was a great source of comfort.

Funeral arrangements were entrusted to Matthews Funeral Home, Melville.

Frank Allan Malach
Feb. 21, 1945 - March 17, 2025

With great sadness, the family announces the passing of Frank Malach, with his wife at his side, at their home on Monday, March 17, 2025.

Frank was born on the family farm Feb. 21, 1945 to Samuel and Katherine Malach at Candiak, SK. He was married to the love of his life, Beatrice, for 56 years.

The greatest joy of Frank's life were his children and grandchildren: son Russell (Patti) and their children Bradly and Tyler; daughter Melinda (Troy) Temple and their children Keegan and Cooper; son Wade; son Matthew (Aimee) and their children Brady and Bridget.

Frank was predeceased by his infant son Samuel; his parents Samuel and Katherine; and siblings Louie, Mary and Doreen.

Frank enjoyed visiting with family and friends, phone calls and messages from those near and far. Watching curling and the Toronto Blue Jays was a favorite pastime for Frank and Beatrice; and keeping up with the grandkids' activities.

As per Franks wishes there will not be a funeral service. Donations in Frank's memory may be made to the St. Elizabeth's Cemetery Fund of Killaly, SK or to the Heart and Stroke foundation.

Beatrice and the children would like to thank all those for the messages and support during this difficult time.

Arrangements entrusted to Conley Funeral Home, Fort Qu'Appelle, SK. 1-306-332-0555.

Memoriam

KOLODZIEJAK - Adeline, April 2, 2015.

A decade has passed since we said goodbye to a special woman whose smile lit up the room while her laugh filled it.

While time has passed, there has not been a day we don't think of her, miss her and cherish past memories. We know she is that bright light that shines down on us.

"Perhaps they are not stars in the sky, but rather openings where our loved ones shine down to let us know they are happy."

-Inuit Proverb

-Love your family.

Memoriam

WAGNER - Margaret, April 1929 - March 2018.

Your laughter echoed, your love embraced. In every corner your grace was traced.

Now the heavens hold you near, Your memory cherished ever dear. Love you Mom!

-Brent, Charlotte, John and families.

Application deadline will be 4:00p.m. on Monday, April 7th, 2025. However, the R.M. of Kingsley No. 124 may extend the deadline until such time that they have found the perfect candidate for this position.

The R.M. of Kingsley No. 124 would like to thank all applicants for their interest, but only those selected for an interview will be contacted.

Knox gold winners take home $15,000

By Alan Hustak
Grasslands News

Fort Knox weren't the only winners in the series against the Regina Capitals. Eugene and Caron Frank, a retired couple from Fort Qu'Appelle, took home the $15,000 Golden Nugget in the team's fundraising draw.

This year's lottery was a scaled down version of the old Gold Rush draw with only 400 instead of 2,900 tickets being sold. The Franks are long-time supporters of the team. They plan to use their windfall to help their grandchildren. Whitney Maurer from Lemberg took home $9,285 as the winner's share of the 50-50 draw.
